

Eiffel Tower

By Patrick O.

The Eiffel Tower is in Paris, France, at the Champ de Mars square. It was built for the entrance to a world fair. It was named after Gustave Eiffel, who was also in charge of its construction. The Eiffel Tower used to be criticized, but over time, got popular. Even though it is not a World Heritage Site, it has gotten so popular, it is now one of the most well known structures in the world! The Eiffel Tower is also known as La dame de fer, the iron lady. In 2015, the Eiffel Tower got the most visitors: 6.91 million people! That is a lot of people.

Map Satellite

Google

Map data ©2013 MapLink Imagery ©2013 NASA, TerraMetrics Terms of Use